

Dale Glasgow, The Life of a Passionate Artist

Dale D. Glasgow was interested in art from the early age of 3. “my passion has always been to be an artist every day of my life” says Glasgow. Experience in working at National Geographic magazine, USA Today, NASA and many Fortune 500 companies has developed his skill for artistic detail. He decided to combine an interest in history with a longtime interest in creating fine arts pieces that would satisfy both his creative interests and his practical need to support a family.

Glasgow is the internationally known artist who painted the Jamestown Discovery series in 2007. His art style, precision and authenticity of history embody a timeless art. Dale’s work can be found in numerous books & publications and venues including National Geographic, Smithsonian Museum, The White House and many Fortune 500 companies’ collections.

Dale and his wife, Sharon of 30 years, have five daughters. Sharon travels and speaks as a Christian speaker. Heather Young, 29, is married, Jeffrey works as designer. Jennifer, 27, is an artist and shows in east and west coast venues. Hannah is married, Jake her husband and she attend VCU; Rachael is an art major at VCU. At home is Ellie, age 15. They live on a small farm with barns with animals– goats, chickens, cats and a border collie named Sparky to keep everyone in line. Their farm is located in Hartwood, Virginia and Dale’s studio is next door.

Glasgow, a Virginia Commonwealth University graduate says, “The most important part of being an artist is enjoying the creative spirit God has given me, I feel His sun rays on my shoulders as I enjoy what I was made to do. Mankind needs to see through the window of history to learn who we are and who we need to become. I hope you enjoy my work as much as I enjoyed creating it. God Bless you.”
